Summary: It's still in the middle of the Human/Covenant war and Dr. Halsey decides to make another Spartan program. They are being sent on missions that ONI chooses. Do they have what it takes to be a Spartan, or are they going to parish like the ghost they were trained to be.

Legends of Wolf Pack

The Legends of Wolf Pack

Disclaimer: I know most of you hate disclaimers but I do this so I don't get into trouble. So listen up I'm going to say this once. I don't own Halo or any of its characters but I do own my OC's lives muhahahah that is all!

Prologue

There is a platoon of UNSC soldiers headed to a relay out post on the surface of Reach. Explosions were all around them and there were dead corpses of Covenant and UNSC alike. All the Marines were dead and the Spartans that were on the team was alive and well except for one. "We need medical evac now!" yelled a Spartan with red and emerald green armor. "It's already on the way, ETA is 3 minutes out." a Spartan with black and red armor responded. "Damn let's hope she lasts that long." The red and green armored Spartan said. "What happened? Why did the mission turn out like this?" said a Spartan with acid green and gold armor in a quizzical tone. "Stay with me DAMN IT!" the Red and green Spartan yelled through the speakers on his helmet. "We need to get out of here quick the Covenant might send reinforcements to see why there was a distressed signal." The one in black and red said to the rest of the team. "Don't worry so much about me just get out of here while you still have a chance." The hurt Spartan said while trying to sit up through the pain. "No I won't leave you behind. Not now not in a million years, you are part of my team." said the red and green armored Spartan. There was the sound of a Phantom and a

Pelican headed towards their position. "Where's that damn Pelican?" the black and red Spartan yelled in annoyance. "There it is get ready to fight our way out of here Spartans!" the Spartan with red and green armor yelled into the team com. In the distance they see a Covenant drop ship coming in on their position. "Eco 467 there are enemy troops inbound on our position we need you down here now!" The acid green armored Spartan yelled into the open battle com. "This is Eco 467 we are right above you and coming in hot!" The Pilot yelled over the com. The Pelican landed and as soon as the Team was onboard it left just as fast. When the leader of the group checked on the wounded Spartan she was barely hanging onto life. The leader of the group gave the wounded Spartan some biofoam and a sedative that would knock out a Moa for five hours. The acid green and gold Spartan was in the cockpit with the pilot and the black and red Spartan was catching up on some sleep in one of the Pelicans many seats. The red and emerald green Spartan sat near his wounded teammate. _"I remember when it wasn't like this. We had completed every mission we were sent on with no casualties, but now the four of us have been the only survivors for the past couple of missions. ONI always puts us on missions that take years to complete. Now we're back at our home. The planet known as Reach, but there was no welcome home party like we usually get from the Halsey and a few select others. It seems like it was yesterday when I met Dr. Halsey for the first time, when I meet her all those years ago she had changed my life forever." _
